

COLLEGE TRAINING DEFENDED BY REA

Pennsylvania's President Says
Good Results Are Shown in Railroading.

HE TELLS OF CANVASS

Larger Proportion of Collegians Reach Leading Positions, He Says.

CHICAGO, April 8.—The world is full of stories of railroad executives who worked their way up without educational advantages, but the world does not realize that no field offers greater advantages to the collegian than railroading and that in no field have collegians made a better showing, Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania systems, said to-night in a statement.

The statement was in reply to questions which had been addressed to Mr. Rea as to whether a college education helped a man and whether railroading offered advantages for the college graduate.

"My answer is an unqualified yes," he said. "Whatever may be said of those who have attained important and responsible positions in the past by having that practical education which comes from hard work in the day and from that social and technical education through intense study at nights and in the holiday season, yet there can be no doubt now for the advantage to the young man who begins his work with an intensively trained mind."

"Other things being equal, he will go ahead faster and get further than the man who lacks that great initial advantage. Indeed, in the technical branches of railroading, as well as mining and most of the productive industries, we have reached the point where the preliminary training of a college or a university course is a necessity for the young man who aims at a place in the executive forces."

"A comprehensive study was recently made of the educational data in the official biographies of 153 principal officers and directors of the Pennsylvania system. Of these men 98 were found to be college graduates and 77 not. Superficially, that does not look like a very striking preponderance in favor of the college man."

"However we must consider that for every hundred men entering the railroad service with a college education there are a good many thousand who start without one. Therefore a comparatively small group of men have produced the eighty-six leading officers and directors who are college trained, whereas the seventy-seven not so trained represent the winners in a race of competition among thousands."

"Viewed in this light there can be no question that the young man who enters the railroad service with a college education has many times a greater chance of reaching a position of his responsibility than has the young man without such advantage."

SAVES MOTHER AND BOY IN RUNAWAY'S PATH

Patrolman O'Donnell Leaps on Bolting Horse.

Scores of pedestrians were endangered last night when a horse drawing a delivery wagon ran through Fulton street, Brooklyn, Isidor Loventhal, of 494 East 125th street, left the horse near Albany street and it was frightened by a passing elevated train.

At Tompkins avenue, Patrolman Thomas J. O'Donnell, pushing aside Mrs. Bertha Floyd and her son, Frank, 4, just in time to prevent them from being trampled under the horse's feet, leaped on the animal's neck, swerved him against a mail box standard and brought him to a stop.

HOG AS A LIQUOR SLEUTH BETTER THAN DRY AGENTS

One in Georgia Discovers Illicit Still, Acquires a Jag, and Leads Operatives to Plant They Failed to Find—Haynes Praises Porker.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., April 8.

Hogs are more efficient than some dry agents in hunting and detecting illicit distillers, according to Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes. They have a keen scent for liquor mash. They wander away for miles over strange pastures, fascinated by the fumes of the still, and eat ravenously of the mixture. How a lone hog traced a notorious Georgia distiller to his wooded den, after trained enforcement operatives had sought him in vain for months, was described by Mr. Haynes to-day.

ARMORED CARS WILL END RUM SMUGGLING

three at night would be sufficient to man each post.

If the recommendations are accepted in Washington Col. Waterbury will provide for the instruction of agents assigned to border work in the use of the machine gun at the State rifle range at Peekskill.

Director Day Gives Plans.

In announcing his plan, Mr. Day said: "There has developed a force of organized smugglers, protected by thugs, gunmen and ex-convicts, whose fields of operation are the New York harbor and the Canadian border."

"A few weeks ago no agent of the prohibition department could safely approach a place where the smugglers were operating. Now we are getting the harbor situation in hand. But agents, no matter how zealous in pursuit of their duties, cannot be expected to walk into certain death. The gun-man's slogan is 'Shoot on sight,' and that is what our men will be up against when they start the campaign on the border. There has been a hegin of gunmen to that section. Criminals in high powered cars are running the roads at night, defying the patrol which the prohibition department has been maintaining."

"The director, determined to end this, has requested military cooperation from the State. That such aid is assured may be seen from the Adjutant-General's communication. If the citizens of the State have been taught to believe that the enforcement of law and order is a theory, they may shortly look to the border of the State for the refutation of this idea. A machine gun can command respect where all other methods fail."

James Shewan, whose yacht, the Patricia, is subject to periodical seizure and release by the customs and prohibition authorities, was informed yesterday that the police had arrested his chauffeur, William Mayer of 523 Fifty-first street, Brooklyn, on a charge of illegal transportation of liquor. Mayer gave a $500 bond in the Yorkville court and was directed to appear for examination to-morrow.

Liquor in Shewan's Car.

Traffic Sgt. Edward Conroy noticed some burlap bags in Mr. Shewan's car while it was caught in a traffic jam in front of the Grand Central Station. Mayer was directed to drive to the East Fifty-first street station, where it was found the bags contained sixty quarts of champagne and some Cuban rum. The chauffeur said he was taking the liquor to his boss and that was all he would say.

A petition for the incorporation of the Eighteenth Amendment Assembly, as a membership body, was filed yesterday in the county court house. The assembly aims, according to its declaration of purposes, "to amend the Volstead act in relation to liquor that the same may be sold by a system of license that can be reasonably enforced; to bring about the passage of a bill in Congress authorizing the use of light wines and beers; to oppose the passage of similar tyrannical laws; to endeavor to have the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, so long as it remains in force, left to the people of the several States under the concurrent clause," and so on, in much the same language used by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The petitioners are Albert B. Palmer, Peter Heseltine, David J. Marks, Michael A. Philbin and Michael M. Klein, all of 1545 Broadway; John T. Fitzgerald, 23 West Eighty-third street, and W. W. Cooper, 120 West 140th street.

FINED FOR SHIPPING RUM TO AMERICAN IN CANADA

Ontario Court Cites Slave
Running Precedent.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 8.—Transportation of liquor consigned to an American buyer within the Canadian border was ruled a breach of international law to-day by Master Judge J. L. Macdonald in a case of 1807 as precedent. He held that because Ontario and the United States both had laws prohibiting importation and sale of liquor Herbert A. Coates of Bridgeburg had committed an act likely to endanger peace between the countries when he arranged to ship sixty cases of liquor to Bridgeburg for an American buyer.

In the Amecia slave case, the basis for the decision, it was brought out that an American slave runner shipping slaves to the United States was caught on the high seas by the British and the English court ruled that because both countries had laws against slave importation the man was guilty of breaking international laws.

Magistrate Jelfs fined Coates $500.

CONGRESS ELECTION HERE IS DRY TEST

Issue Squarely Drawn in 37th District.

Republicans and Democrats, Prohibitionists and anti-Prohibitionists are in accord that the special Congress election in the Thirty-seventh New York district should furnish a test of the trend of sentiment on the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act.

Louis Henry of Elmira, Republican candidate to succeed Representative Alanson B. Loughton, who resigned to accept the post of Ambassador to Germany, is a "dry." Judge Frank M. Irvine of Ithaca, former Public Service Commissioner, the Democratic nominee, has come out flatly for a return to old conditions.

The district is composed of the counties of Chemung, Tompkins, Tioga, Schuyler and Steuben. Under local option the district had been dry. In 1920 the Republicans carried the district by two to one.

"Of course the total vote will be less than it was then," said George A. Glynn, chairman of the Republican State Committee, last night. "But if weather and roads are favorable the Republican percentage will be as high as ever. Republican women will be a big factor in the race. They have been working hard, and a big percentage of the vote will be polled by them."

Herbert C. Pell, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, expects inroads in the Republican vote.

ROTARIANS WANT MAIL TUBES.

The New York Rotary Club is urging the restoration of pneumatic mail tube service in New York city. It contends that the motor vehicle service, which substituted for the tubes in 1918, has not proved "a service of equal expedition and security" as was promised by the then Postmaster-General. It is represented that the substitute service has cost more money, caused greater delays and otherwise affected the postal service.

The Rotarians have endorsed the Senate amendment to the post office appropriation bill providing for the reestablishment of the service, and a resolution passed at their regular meeting at the McAlpin last Thursday urges the House to accept the amendment and enact it into law.

JOB EXEMPTION NOT ASKED.

No drive is being made by the Republican organization of New York city to have fifteen or sixteen positions here under the jurisdiction of the Treasury Department taken out of the civil service.

Samuel S. Koenig, president of the Republican County Committee, said yesterday: "Six months ago a move was started to have exempted the post of Supervising Internal Revenue Agent and at the time there were candidates for it. But we gave up all hope months ago of having our suggestion approved. No delegation is going to Washington on Tuesday to urge any action along these lines, as was stated in a paper this morning."
